Dear General Heinz:

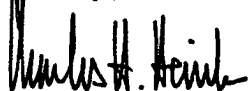

Preparing the defense of the free world is a complex goal that must include learning as much as possible about the potential enemy. The enclosed videotape provides an introduction to a new series of videos that will enable the viewer to gain a comprehensive understanding of Soviet military art. The series, entitled "War and the Soviet Union," consists of 12 forty-five minute videotapes that incorporate original Soviet footage throughout. I have also enclosed a copy of the first videotape of the series. Program 1 reviews the background of Soviet military thinking and gives you a good indication of the quality and substance of the series. These videotapes have been edited and analyzed by leading authorities, directed by Christopher Donnelly, Head of the Soviet Studies Research Centre, based at the Royal Military Academy, Sandhurst, England, and an internationally-recognized authority on the Soviet military system.

The videotapes provide an in-depth analysis of the Soviet military from its structure and operations to its equipment, weapons procurement, and doctrines--information that will enable our military personnel to understand their Soviet counterparts and aid in the preparation of our own military tactics. The attached leaflet describes in more detail each of the subject areas covered in the tapes. The complete series of 12 tapes is available at a subscription price of $4000.00, or individual tapes may be purchased for $400.00.

If you need additional information about the valuable insights available in these tapes, please contact me or Joseph McHale, Vice President of Sales, and we will work with you to develop a program that will best meet the needs of the intelligence community.

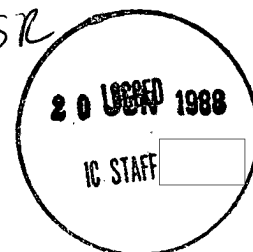

I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Charles H. Heinle
President
